

Here's how Uber works:

- First, download the free Uber app for iOS, Android or Windows Phone.
- Then, create an account using your email address and phone number, and add your payment information.

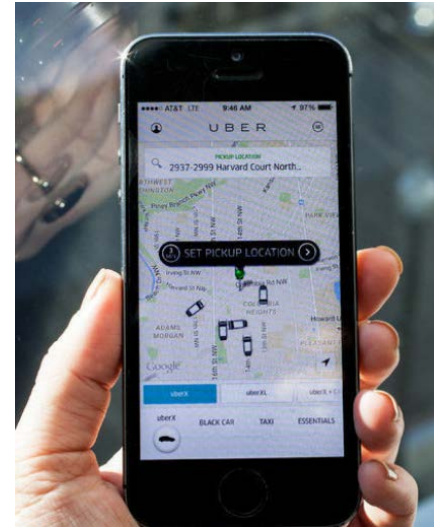

When you're ready to go, open the app and enter your destination in the "Where To" bar. You can do so by:

- Searching for the name of a place
- Entering an address, or;
- Setting a pin

Once you've determined the ride details, just tap 'Request.' When your driver is on the way, you'll see:

- Your driver's picture and name
- Picture of the vehicle, and make and model
- Car's license plate number

You can also watch the driver travel to your location on the app's map. That way, you know you're getting in the right car with the right driver. If you need to get in touch, you can call or text your driver through the Uber app.

When you arrive at your destination, just hop out—the cost of your trip will be charged automatically to the payment method on file.

After every trip, you can rate your experience and provide anonymous feedback about your driver. Should you need to get in touch, the in-app support feature is there to help.
